WAR TALKS

By UNCLE DAN

Number Two

Jimmie Collins Tells What He Saw—What Military Training Does for Boys.

"Well, here we are!" exclaimed Bill, presenting his chum, Jimmie Collins.

"Very glad to see you, Mr. Collins," said Uncle Dan with a smile.

"Aw," said Bill, "Just call him Jimmie. That's the only name he knows. He's the pitcher of our baseball nine, and he's some pitcher, too. Just look at his arm."

"Well," said Uncle Dan, feeling, "That's a mighty good arm!"

"Now, boys," said Uncle Dan, "what do you want to talk about?"

"Well," said Jimmie, "I was down to Galesburg a few months ago when the boys came home from the Mexican border. They looked fine. Everybody was surprised to see how straight they stood and how manly they were. The boys seemed proud to wear the uniform. I tell you their muscles were as hard as nails. I heard Banker Hackett say that the training and discipline the boys had had was exactly what every boy in the country ought to have, and that now these boys could get a better job at higher pay than they could have had before. Do you think that's so, Uncle Dan?"

Uncle Dan replied: "I have a friend who employs hundreds of young men. He always gives boys having had military training the preference; he says it pays to do so. He finds they are more alert, more prompt, more courteous; they know how to carry out orders; they are quicker to think and to act than those without training. He said from his experience he believed that six or eight months of intensive military training would add at least 20 per cent to a man's earning capacity, and that it was the best investment any young man could make."

"Billie, if you will go up to my room and bring my small handbag, I will let you see two photographs of the same young man, showing what only five months of intensive training on the Mexican border did for him."

The bag was brought. Uncle Dan, showing the pictures, said: "Well, here they are. They tell their own story and it is a mighty interesting one. The young man, before training, was a discouraged look; he had seen but little of the world. There was very little in his surroundings to bring him out. When he joined the colors and Uncle Sam took him in charge, he saw a chance to do something and he something. He woke up. His captain says he is twice the man he was when he joined the army. This may be one of the extreme cases," said Uncle Dan. "I can tell you, though, that war or no war, no one thing will do the young men of this nation so much good in so short a time as a few months of intensive military training. It fits a man to fight his own life battles in the business world as well as to defend his country and its flag."

"Nearly every civilized country gives its boys military training. It is compulsory. It is based upon the fact that it is the duty of everyone to help defend his country; and as war is now carried on, no one can do much unless he is trained. Also, the records show that the killed and wounded among untrained troops is nearly three times as great as it is with well-trained men who know how to fight and how to protect themselves. By this plan a nation has trained men to defend her and the individual is a stronger and better man for the training."

"If the Chamberlain Bill for Military Training is passed by congress, as it ought to be, the same thing would be done for millions of other young men throughout the land. Everybody ought to demand of his congressman and senators the passage of this bill."

"All right, sir," exclaimed Jimmie, "I'll see Judge Brownell, Mr. Hackett, and Professor Bloom, and get them busy."

The Hoover & Allison Company

OF XENIA, OHIO

Series "B" 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock

Callable at 105 with accrued dividends

The final allotment of this desirable stock of the Hoover & Allison Company, one of the largest cordage manufacturing firms in the country, is now offered to the public.

Owing to the increase of business in general, the increase in the manufacturing capacity at the Xenia and Kansas City plants, and the great rise in the value of materials, the officers of the Company have been convinced of the necessity of an increase of working capital.

The uses for cordages are so many and line of products manufactured by the company so varied that the Company's plant are steadily employed to meet the demand.

The Hoover & Allison Company's business was established in 1869 and incorporated under the present organization in June, 1888. Save your Dividends—

Within the next ten days we will pay to our ten thousand depositors something over a hundred thousand dollars in dividends.

One of the advantages of our pass-book accounts is that if these dividends are not withdrawn—they automatically accumulate and compound—and compound interest is a tremendous help in fortune building.

The secret of the successful accumulation of money is in saving the small sums. If you will allow your dividends to accumulate—each succeeding dividend will be a little larger—and you will be surprised to see how fast your account will grow.

The coal situation has caused many a household to have a representative on the woodpile if he was fortunate to find wood. The demand for axes and crosscut saws has been unusual and it is said the local supply of axes has been sold out with little hope of getting more from the wholesale houses this season. Farmers who will need farm machinery this coming season should lose no time in placing their order now, as manufacturers using steel and iron are being limited by the government, which means a curtailment of their output.

ANOTHER BARGAIN OFFER

The Ohio State Journal is Out With Their Annual Offer, Embracing Reductions All Along the Line.

Regardless of the fact that the expense of publishing a newspaper has advanced enormously over a year ago, the Ohio State Journal is out with their annual reductions in a dozen different club offers.

The Ohio State Journal is the oldest newspaper published west of the Allegheny Mountains. It has long been a great favorite with the farmers, who like to get a newspaper on the day it is published. This year advantage the Ohio State Journal has over other publications in its section, as it is the only morning newspaper published in Columbus or Central Ohio and therefore the only one to reach rural roof-top patrons on day of publication.

A newspaper subscription has added down to a business transaction. The subscriber in this day and age considers the news service and what time the paper will reach him. He wants service, both in the way of news and delivery.

The Ohio State Journal is a member of the Associated Press and its readers are therefore assured of receiving, at the earliest possible hour, all the important news from every section of the globe.

Interest in the great European war has made the daily newspaper of greater importance than ever before. Our boys are now fighting in the big army with the allies and we are more than interested.

Special attention has been given to the Live Stock, Grain and Produce market reports, which have fluctuated so much on account of the war and Ohio State Journal readers have been kept in close touch with every change in price.

Colonel E. S. Wilson, lecturer, orator, and after-dinner speaker in charge of the editorial page, has a large following, who recognize his ability and prize his editorial work.

Apparently every effort has been made by the management of the Ohio State Journal to make that newspaper interesting and reliable in every respect. Its many features show the careful study and that for a thoroughly complete and up-to-date newspaper the Ohio State Journal is not excelled.

The Bargain Offer will come to a close at midnight Jan. 31. Subscriptions for the Ohio State Journal and National Stockman or the Ohio State Journal and Ohio Farmer will be accepted during the Bargain Offer period for three dollars and fifty cents, which is fifty cents less than the regular price. Subscriptions may be forwarded through this office or sent direct to the Ohio State Journal Company, Columbus, O. Prices are advancing and it would seem that this is a good time to subscribe.

Mrs. B. F. Donaldson will sell all her household goods in the room on Main street vacated by the Post Bakery on Saturday, January 5, at 1:30 p. m. In the sale will be potatoes, apples and canned fruit of all kinds.

The Chevrolet touring car now has the one man top and demountable rims. For the price it is the best proposition on the market.

A Safe Investment Yielding 7% In a Dominant Dayton Industry

We offer the second allotment of the Cumulative Preferred Stock of the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing Company to yield 7%, free from all Ohio Taxes and normal federal income tax.

The Dayton Rubber Manufacturing Company

Every safeguard has been provided to make this stock a safe and profitable investment. The business of the company is well established. Dayton Airless Tires have been sold for five years. Basic patents protect them from possible competition. They are used exclusively by hundreds of cities on fire apparatus and thousands are now in service on light pleasure and delivery cars.

Net profits on the fire apparatus department alone, have been more than sufficient to pay the interest on the entire authorized issue of preferred stock.

During each of the past four years orders for Dayton Airless Tires have far exceeded the possible production.

In the past three years Dayton Pneumatic Tires have been thoroughly established in the trade and orders for these, also have far exceeded the supply.

An important factor in the company's business is the manufacture of Airplane Tires and a large contract has recently been closed.

The average net profit of the company for the past four years has been over ten times as much as the dividend requirements on the entire outstanding preferred stock.

The budget for the 1918 season contemplates $5,000,000 worth of business, and it is conservatively estimated that the net profit on that volume will maintain the former ratio of earnings to dividend charges.

The company's assets are $200.00 for every share of preferred stock.

This offering affords an opportunity for investment with unusual safety and profit in one of Dayton's fastest growing industries.

As the first offering of this stock, issued six months ago, was quickly taken by investors, we advise that you communicate with us immediately.
